

Glass is better...

The abundance of scientific reports and news articles warning us against the dangers of chemicals leaching toxins from plastics into our food and beverages have increased demand for better alternatives to safeguard our health.

Concerns for the environment warrant special consideration for choices we make every day. Each container we drink, eat or store food in becomes a decision about ecology. Only 20% of plastics produced make it to a recycling center.

Our company, GlassDharma, recommends glass instead of plastic. Once these glass drinking straws have graced your lips, you will agree that it is the natural solution to many current environmental issues. Drinking from a glass straw also adds an element of luxury to your drinking experience.

We find that our straws have wide appeal to those concerned with natural health and ecology. (The Green crowd) This is no small fringe group as in the 1960's. The term "Cultural Creatives" has been coined by sociologist Paul H. Ray, Ph.D. and psychologist Sherry Ruth Anderson, Ph.D. in 2000 and they estimate that this group represents 24% of the population in America and growing.
(See culturalcreatives.org)

We believe that glass drinking straws are not just a fad, but a growing trend and that it will not be long before glass drinking straws will be a normal part of everyday kitchenware in every household. We are looking for businesses to partner with to make this a reality. Our hope is that you will find our drinking straws a good fit with your present product line and wish to develop a business relationship that not just helps each other, but benefits the world as well.

Thank you for your time and consideration,

David Leonhardt, Owner